- School is a part of a life-long learning process leading to new knowledge and personal growth.
- All students deserve an education that is innovative with skills in technology, research practices, healthy lifestyles, creativity, and performance.
- In order to cultivate the whole child, the learning environment must be a safe, collaborative, risk-taking community.
- Learning should consist of a variety of educational experiences that provide physical, social, and intellectual development.

- Parental involvement and community collaboration are essential for a well-rounded education.
