Centerville Academy of 21st Century Learning

Centerville Academy of 21st Century Learning is committed to providing an environment based on shared values and beliefs through teaching and learning. Through 21st Century competencies known as the “4 C’s” as coined by the national organization of The Partnership of 21st Century Skills, Centerville prepares students for college, careers, and citizenship in an ever-changing society.

Education at Centerville is committed to state and common core standards that infuse the 21st Century skills of collaboration, creativity, communication, and critical thinking. These shared values and beliefs are communicated consistently to faculty, staff, and leaders through instructional planning, grade level meetings, professional development, and community meetings.

Evidence of this commitment to an engaging student environment is acquired through teacher and parent surveys, teacher lesson plans, district benchmark tests, MAP results, and PASS data. These results are utilized in a measurable way so that all students achieve learning, thinking, and life skills that are necessary to success.
